Personal qualities

Personal qualities:	Dynamic and adoptive to new working environments. Friendly and also a good team player but also able to work on my own. Always open to new experiences, am open minded and able to analyze my own life. Consider myself as a critical thinker. Can also think technically and be self-reliant and creative when solving and dealing with daily problems at work. I consider myself able to also be a critical thinker as a positive way.
Strengths:	Working experience in various fields and with different types of people from different backgrounds. Good knowledge of myself and know how to motivate myself and others as well. I also don't take constructive criticism personally.
Weaknesses:	I work better under pressure and due to that I sometimes leave important things for the last minute which might be risky in some scenarios. I like to take risks but sometimes they do not work out the good, but sometimes they do.
Interests and hobbies:	Music, photography, physiology and different types of extreme sports, martial arts and sometimes a bit of disc-golf.

Organisations

Additional information	Since 2012 I have been training Mixed Martial Arts and Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu and even competed in a few tournaments for personal growth and experience purposes.

Other information

Additional information:	In 2012 I started studies to become a gym teacher and basketball coach at Tallinn University, just for personal interest and also self-development but for future career and also financial purposes I decided on moving on to a more challenging field of work. The program at TLU was a bit outdated and the tuition fees did not seem to be the best value for money. I was also then accepted in the business information technology masters program at TTÜ (Tallinn University of Technology) but wasn't confident regarding my programming skills at that time and so went on to study web-technologies at EEK also hoping maybe later to also continue with my masters.
